2011 Haywood Burns Memorial Fellowships
for Social and Economic Justice

APPLICATION PACKET

Application Guidelines

The Haywood Burns Memorial Fellowships for Social and Economic Justice has its roots in the National Lawyers Guild's established tradition of providing legal, political and educational support to the important progressive movements of the day. In the summer of 1964, the Guild, working with the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, sent lawyers and law students to provide legal support for the emerging civil rights movement in what became known as the Mississippi Summer.

In late 1972, New York State indicted 62 prisoners who survived the police assault at the Attica Correctional Facility. None of the police officers was indicted despite detailed reports of excessive force. In 1973, the Summer Projects Committee was formed in part to respond to this situation. The committee sent students to assist with the defense of the Attica Brothers, to support the growing farmworker initiatives in California, and to support Native American treaty rights in the Pacific Northwest.

Over the years, the Summer Projects program has expanded to place hundreds of students with public interest organizations working to protect and further the civil rights of oppressed people in the United States. Although providing legal work under the direction of their attorney-organizers is still important, the primary mission of the summer projects is to strengthen each student's long-term commitment to promote justice and equality. Fellows have worked with groups to provide legal, political, and educational support on a wide variety of issues, including voting rights; union democracy; workplace health and safety; the death penalty and prison reform; lesbian/gay/bisexual/trans rights; defense of protesters from police harassment and criminal sanctions; and international human rights.

In 1996 the program was renamed after Haywood Burns, long-time radical lawyer, law professor and former president of the National Lawyers Guild, whose life and work created a legend to inspire generations to come. ABOUT THE FELLOWSHIPS

The Haywood Burns Fellowships are designed to encourage students to work in the National Lawyers Guild's tradition of "peoples" lawyering. The program exists to help students apply their talents and skills to find creative ways to use the law to advance justice. Burns Fellowships provoke law students to challenge traditional notions of how one must practice law and to provide a summer experience that will enrich and challenge them.

Fellowships may be completed with any existing organization whose mission addresses the needs of underserved individuals and groups. We encourage applicants to identify grassroots and non-traditional work opportunities for which there is a serious current societal need. This could be a small non-profit, a short-staffed community law firm, or an organizing campaign that needs legal assistance. The Haywood Burns Fellowships usually provide a rigorous legal experience as well as a political one. At the back of this brochure we list names of some of the former Haywood Burns placements to give students an idea of the work we have funded in the past.

The kinds of grassroots programs that are appealing to us have included developing a clemency program for battered women incarcerated prior to the recognition of the battered woman's syndrome as a defense, filing habeas petitions, conducting interviews for an environmental justice class action suit, and working on cases that involve sexual assault of female prisoners. We generally do not provide funding for work at large non-profits or agencies that receive government funding, though we have made some exceptions if the agencies are severely under-funded or if the project is especially compelling .

We encourage applicants to pick timely projects that might be overlooked by more traditional sources of funding. Ideas specific to 2011 might include economic justice work with individuals who have lost their homes, environmental justice work for those suffering from the consequences of mountaintop removal or helping to defend activists who are being targeted by the FBI,.

In 2011, we expect to award five Fellowships. We provide $2,000 for a ten-week period and encourage students to find supplemental funding.

A DIFFERENT FELLOWSHIP EXPERIENCE

Depending on the geographic location of the placements, we hope to introduce Fellows to Guild members working in a related area. We provide free membership in the NLG for one year to all Fellows. As members of the Guild, Fellows can join one or more of our many issue-related listservs, receive our organizational publications and attend our annual convention at a discounted rate. Perhaps most important, membership in the Guild introduces students to a progressive community of lawyers, law students, legal workers and jailhouse lawyers working in the service of the people. Guild lawyers are at the forefront of legal challenges related to civil rights, military law, immigration law, environmental law, national and international human rights and many other areas. The Guild is also a valuable forum for rethinking the tradition of “peoples’ lawyering” to meet present needs. We like to hear from our Fellows over their ten-week placement and encourage them to email us to let us know how their work is progressing or to ask us for help networking with other Guild members.

THE PROCESS

Applicants should identify an organization for which they would like to work and then submit a one- to two-page letter of support from the organization. The letter should include the following information:

1. Description of the legal work the Fellow will be responsible for
2. The need met by this fellowship
3. Name of supervising attorney who will have day-to-day contact with the Fellow and extent to which the attorney can mentor the Fellow
4. Guarantee all logistical needs (i.e. office spaces, supplies)
5. Amount of funding, if any, the sponsoring organization can provide

In addition, all prospective Fellows must complete and submit the application form and the required writing samples (see pages 4-5).

SELECTION CRITERIA AND EVALUATION

Projects will be evaluated on the basis of legal, political and geographical diversity, as well as the project’s connections to the ongoing needs of the persons and communities served. Applications will be evaluated on the basis of the student’s and organization’s commitment to social justice and on a balancing of legal, practical and political work and skills development. Reviewers will also take into consideration the need for the project and how the experience will further the Fellow’s legal and career trajectory.

THE DEADLINE FOR APPLICATIONS IS JANUARY 7, 2011.
APPLICANTS WILL BE NOTIFIED BY JANUARY 21, 2011.
